HISTORY

CLEAH was founded in 1977 with an initial grant of $6,000 from the Hawai'i Department of Education. Founding members included Maylani Chang and Hope Staab of Punahou School, John Wollstein of the Hawai'i Department of Education, Joyce Leung of Roosevelt High School, Tze-yi Chao of Iolani School, Wah Duk Young of Sun Yat-Sen School, and Larry Foster, Ying-che Li, and Daniel Tom of the University of Hawai'i at Mānoa.

Founding President Joyce Leung recalls, "The formation of CLEAH was a direct result of a major crisis, the pending termination of the growing Chinese Mandarin program at Kawananakoa Intermediate School. Our hope was to save the Kawananakoa program and to support the teaching of Chinese overall in Hawai'i. This period was very stressful and yet exciting. Parents, students, educators and other concerned citizens packed the Hawai'i Board of Education meeting, spilling into the hallway to testify in support of maintaining the Kawananakoa Chinese program. Leading daily newspapers also provided coverage. Eventually the program was saved, and CLEAH was born."

The constitution of CLEAH was based upon that of the Hawai'i Association of Language Teachers (HALT). Attorneys John Chang and Larry Foster helped CLEAH obtain its non-profit status.
